

AZRAN OSMAN-RANI

“The Warrior of the Light” quotes. By Paulo Coelho

“The most difficult thing in the world is to adopt the spirit and attitude of a warrior. It's no use being sad, complaining, feeling unjustly treated and believing someone is doing something negative. No one is doing anything and certainly not to a warrior.”

“It matters not how we were brought up what determines our way of acting is the manner in which we administrate our will. The will is a sentiment, a talent something which lends us enthusiasm. The will is something which is acquired but it is necessary to fight for it one's whole life.”

“The humility of a warrior is not the same humility is that of a servile man. The warrior does not lower his head to anyone but nor does he allow anyone to bow before him. The servile man on the other hand kneels before anyone that he thinks more powerful than him and demands that people under him behave in a similar fashion before him.”

“The bad thing about words is that they make us feel as if we were illuminated and understand everything but when we turn and face the world we see that reality is completely different from that which we discuss or heard. A warrior seeks to act and not waste time in useless conversation.”

“The ordinary man thinks that yielding to doubts and worries is a sign of sensibility, of spirituality, acting thus, he remains distant from the true meaning of life. This type of person loves being told what he should do. Only a warrior can endure the path of knowledge. A warrior does not complain or lament anything and sees challenges as neither good or bad. Challenges are simply challenges.”

“The world is unfathomable and mysterious just as we all are, and the art of the warrior consists of reconciling the terror of being a man with the wonder of being a man.”